

Scores to be handicapped

Scores established in all 18 hole singles stroke (includes Par, Stableford, and Medal) competition rounds that have been played at courses with a Scratch Rating determined in accordance with a system which is officially recognised by Golf Australia will be used for handicapping purposes. Scores from social rounds will not be accepted for handicapping.

Fourball scores will be used for handicapping an individual player in the following circumstances:

- The pair that the relevant player played in has a net score of a least 6 better than par (ie 42 points or better in Stableford).
- The individual player's score appears at least 9 times on the fourball scorecard.
- The adjusted score after this method is applied to create an individual score is equal to or better than 36 points.
